July 12.

Five Dollars Reward,

FOR apprehending and committing to jail, or bringing home ALSE, a Negro woman who ran away on Tuesday morning the 17th inst. She is about 30 years of age, of middle size, dark brown complexion, her nose higher than those common to negroes; she took with her a variety of clothing.

Her mother, WINNY, about 50 years of age a stout black woman, has been runaway for about 6 years. She was for sometime in Alexandria, called her name Winny Buckner, and once hired herself to a Mr. Sutton of that place. She has since been heard of at Baltimore.
It is likely Alse has made for Frederickburg, to make her escape to her mother.

If both are secured, so that I get them again, I will give Thirty Dollars.

RECOMMENDATION.

From a knowledge that a great many cellars in this town, have for such a length of time contained stagnant water, and other foul and noxious substances, that they have become less wholesome at this season than they otherwise would have been, had they been kept dry and clean; under this impression I am led to solicit a particular attention from my fellow citizens to those apartments to their dwellings and warehouses; and to those who have not already had the walls and roofs thereof white washed, (after being well brushed down)—I earnestly recommend that measure to be immediately adopted, as they tender their own health and that of their domestic; and further, that they keep them as well aired and dry as their respective situations will permit, during this and the ensuing month at least.

The several Constables are required to rigidly execute the law prohibiting dogs going at large.

 Superintendent of Police.

FROM THE BALANCE.

IT is a maxim founded on truth and experience, that to destroy the liberties of the people, their vigilance must first be seduced by artifice and deception. Fraud in such cases precedes force. Flattery is succeeded by violence; insidious professions terminate in usurpations, and deceitful promises are followed by tyranny and oppression. The people, made the dupes of their own credulity, are reduced to subjection; they sink into desponding indolence; every generous sentiment becomes dormant; their spirits are depressed, and outrages must be carried to extremities before they make one manly effort to recover their right.

The above observations, though of a general nature, in my conception admit of a pertinent application here. We live under a government wearing the mildest appearance, established on the most liberal principles, and securing to us every immunity and privilege necessary to the happiness of rational creatures. The people of this country are truly and emphatically sovereign. The supreme power resides ultimately in them, and this power I respect when exercised with justice and moderation.

Enjoying a government, which, in its nature, is thus propitious to the rights of man, and to the happiness and prosperity of society, it is incumbent on us to guard it with vigilant attention. The principles of this government ought to be preserved pure and uncorrupted. The purity of those principles is the safeguard of our rights, and when once this purity is gone, the descent to anarchy and from thence to despotism, is sure and inevitable. A government thus vitiated hastens its own destruction. In vain will the patriot endeavour to carry it back to its original principles. The impulse has been given which is too strong to be resisted.

That the principles of our government are already corrupted, many will deny; but that there is an impending danger of corruption, I sincerely believe. The virtue which supported us in the trying season of '76, is now considerably enervated.
 That political jealousy which was expressed with so much warmth, at the time of the adoption of our constitution, seems now to be lulled to rest. That exalted opinion which our forefathers held of the liberty of the citizen, is now much depressed. That high spirit which once resisted the minutest infringements of right, now scarcely breathes a feeble murmur against the most flagrant injustice. Our property is, as yet, secure; and we feel regardless of the danger which hovers over our liberty. We riot in present prosperity, and little think of consequences. We view with complacency the present appearance of our political atmosphere, and consider it as pleasant and serene; but let it be remembered, that the clearest sky often forbodes the most dreadful storms.

I lay it down as an eternal principle of truth, admitting of no qualifications or exception, that men who, by intrigue, imposition and dissimulation, obtain the confidence of the people, are never satisfied till they have accomplished the ruin of those by whom they are raised into consideration. While on the threshold, they may, indeed, for a moment, adopt measures plausible and insinuating; but in proportion as their measures are popular, so are their views pernicious and destructive.
 Against such men, let the People of the United States guard! Their good sense, I trust, has only been abused. A bad man will sometimes steal the favor, and impose on the generosity of the most virtuous people, enjoying the best institutions. It is an evil incident to society. Actuated by the lofty spirit of freemen, the discernment of a generous people is quick; they will soon detect impositions on their good sense, their indignation will be roused, and they will hurl, with manly vengeance, the impostor into insignificance and contempt.

I have been led to these remarks, on hearing the arrogant pretensions to patriotism, made by a party in this country. A party, which, elated with success, directs the most violent invectives against men who planned and perfected that system, which has been so propitious to our interest and glory—a party, which once fomented the most dangerous insurrection; a party, which more than once excited violent disobedience to the constituted authorities.

Let us now, sir, refer to the period when the noted Genet endeavoured to plunge this country into a destructive war, and to prejudice the minds of the people against the first officers of our government. If I am not mistaken, a review of that period, will recall to our minds, facts not very honorable to the characters of men now in conspicuous and important stations. It will also be recollected, that after the attempts of Genet to draw this government into a pernicious and impolitic war, he had the presumption to declare his intention of appealing from the President to the people.

 It will also be recollected, that about the same time, a proclamation of neutrality was issued by the President. Now let me ask, what then was the conduct of our present pacific patriots? Did they support our government against the machinations of a foreigner? Did they resent, with hearty indignation the glaring attempts of a French ambassador to draw us into a war? Attempts made with unblushing effrontery, and seconded by an impudent overbearing beyond expression? Did they appro-bate the proclamation of neutrality, intended to guard our country against the calamities of an unnecessary war? I answer no!
 Those men who now so courteously submit to insult and aggression, at that time were enthusiastically eager to plunge us into hostilities, to gratify the purposes of a foreign nation, and from which we might expect nothing but ignominy and disgrace.
 The firm and determined resolution of Washington was most bitterly scandalized, by the minions of faction. The conduct of Genet was warmly applauded. The illustrious hero who had served his country with so much glory, was then represented as weak and pusillanimous in the cabinet.
 The most insidious calumny was pointed with unexampled malignity, against him.
 The father of his country was then stigmatized by a faction, in order to vindicate and eulogise Genet.

If the preceding representation be true, what are we to think of the self styled republicans of A. merica? They are now entrusted with the dearest interests of the people; and it is incumbent on the people to watch them with a jealous and scrutinizing eye. Let them not be deceived by measures which, at first view, appear politic and beneficial; but which, in their consequences, may be ruinous to this country. Let them not be imposed on, by hollow professions of zeal for their service; nor let the vain boasts of purity and rectitude, quiet their suspicions. The most artful demagogues sometimes deviate into a course of apparent rectitude, to ensure success to their enterprise against liberty; and while they deceive us, rely upon it they intend our destruction.

A FEDERALIST.

From the Charleston Courier.

THE harmless hornbook politicians who looked upon the beginning of the French revolution with unmeaning admiration and unsuspecting regard, are now convinced of their error, and will learn to think more humbly of their judgment. Those virtuous citizens who continued to like it when they saw it was mischievous, and liked every part of it exactly in proportion to its malignity; and those who were once so enthusiastically fond of Bonaparte that they made him their every thing—the standing dish—the grace before and the grace after meat, and the topic at meat; the salt to their nuts, the olives to their wine, and three-times-three toast at their table, drinking his blessed health fathoms deep, all the while that he was himself wallowing in carnage like a butcher in a slaughter house, and steeped to the lips in blood-shed by himself, those are now left in a most deplorable situation, if they have heads to conceive, hearts to feel, or consciences to measure the turpitude of the events at which they rejoiced, and of the monster at whose daily apotheosis they have so often poured forth libations till they reeled. Their champion of liberty is now converted into a monarch—and his cap into an imperial crown—The Doctor of Jaffa if he is at all, is Emperor of the French People, and the Republic of France is now a hereditary monarchy, an unmitigated despotism; the horrid drama which has for years disturbed and perplexed the world is ended like a hideous dream, and its catastrophe accomplished. That catastrophe which every wise man foresaw, which every honest man deprecated, which fools would not believe, and which all who have read the history of mankind to any useful effect, could not but be assured must happen sooner or later.

When speculative men with better hearts than heads, and more zeal than experience, sit down to write upon governments, or to invent new ones, they set out with the first step knee-deep in the error and go upon the hypothesis that man may be found what he never has been, that is to say, less subject to the influence of the passions, and disposed to the gratification of the senses, than he ever was, or is, or ever will be; unless indeed it shall please God to form him on a different plan from that on which he has hitherto formed him, a thing which we are bound to believe impossible, since God being omniscient, must have known from the beginning how it was best to make man, and being incapable of error, cannot rescind his own decrees. Such speculators like Harrington, the author of the Ocean, think with all the extravagance though not with the genius of poetry, conceive and bring forth the most monstrous and unnatural productions. They never think at all of man's nature, nor estimate his necessities, but measure every part of their process by his ease and his convenience.— They do not make the government to fit the man; but they first make a government to suit their own fancy, and then leave it to chance or to the operation of laws, for ages of misery and error, to make the man fit for the government—forgetting that tho' governments may be changed, the nature of man in the aggregate is no more to be altered, than fire to be made freeze, or water to burn.

The French revolutionists were not entirely unaware of this, nor improvident to meet it. They knew that the man and the government must in some way or other be brought to assimilate; and attributing too much of the man to social fashioning, and too little to nature and complexion, they began with measures calculated to alter the whole turn and fabric of his thoughts, habits, and sentiments. Though those measures were designed with diabolical ingenuity, and carried into effect with remorseless villainy, they did not answer; for the great tap root of those thoughts, habits, and sentiments, however adventitious and su-perinduced they might be, was still deep laid in the nature of man; in his senses, in his passions, and in his appetites, instincts and aversions, which though they may be,
 and in fact are, moulded and fashioned, and dressed out in a thousand external forms, still remain substantially the same, as mind is still mind, whether trained to mathematics or to poetry, or, as the head and the feet remain the same, whether the one be dressed en queue or cropped, or the other waddle with turned in toes like those of a Parrot, on the one hand, or dance an allemande or move a minuet with grace and elegance, on the other. By his nature, man is rapacious, some men complexion-ally more, some less, but all to a degree which requires restraint for the purposes of social life. Rapacity is in his natural state imposed upon him as a necessity, by his natural wants; and when society lays a restraint upon his rapacity, it supplies the places of it by providing laws of just distribution, and affording protection from the rapacity of others. Still, however, it exists in man, incurably—nor ought it to be cured if it might, since being the boon of God, it is right that it should exist. Whenever this powerful gas is let loose by a dissolution of the laws, customs, and opinions which restrain it, we find it rage without bounds, and in whatever channel it takes its direction, whether ambition or avarice, carrying always wrong, often ruin, along with it. When a people are let loose by revolution, and the consequent dissolution of their laws, and what is worse, by the extinction of all their reverence for those laws, they are like the evil Genii, in the Arabian Nights Entertainments, which was shut up by a magician in a vessel of copper, made fast with Solomon's Seal, but as soon as the seal was taken off, and it extricated itself from its narrow confines, expanded first into a mist that darkened and horror-struck the plains, and at last became a terrible, malignant, and destructive giant and sorcerer. No force can get them in a gain, and they continue to commit outrage, and murder and ruin, till some necroman-cer who has cunning, skill, and boldness enough to hazard the attempt, contrives to get them again under Solomon's Seal. So it was in France, notwithstanding all the cautionary provisions of the Revolutions.
 To secure the political Revolution and give it permanency, the perpetrators of that horrid business worked a kind of sub-revolution in the minds and morals of the people.
 Religion was abrogated by law, and atheism established in its place. All those that go by the name of virtues were held to be priestcraft. The right of marriage was declared to be a civil contract, which it depended upon the will of the parties to adhere to or relinquish; a system of gross and deformed lewdness, upon the model of J. J. Rousseau's morality, took place, and to such an extent was promiscuous concubinage and divorce carried, that even the former morals of Paris appeared as angelic purity when compared with these new abominations. The people were taught to believe there was no virtue but patriotism, no sin but love of monarchy, and that it was laudable for a father to murder his child, or a child his father, for what they called incivism. In a word, murder itself,

N O T E.

"The event which has taken place in the states of his highness the elector of Baden, and the conclusion of which has been so melancholy, has occasioned the most poignant grief to the emperor of all the Russias. He cannot but view with the greatest concern the violation which has been committed on the tranquility and integrity of the German territory. His imperial majesty is the more affected by this event, as he never could have expected that a power which had undertaken in common with himself, the office of mediator and was consequently bound to exert its care for the welfare and tranquility of Germany, could have departed in such a manner from the sacred principles of the law of nations, and the duties it had so lately taken on itself.

"It would be unnecessary to call the attention of the diet to the serious consequence to which the German empire must be exposed, if acts of violence, of which the first example has just been seen, should be passed over in silence; it will with its accustomed foresight easily perceive how much the future tranquility and security of the whole empire, and each of its members, must be endangered, if such violent proceedings should be considered as allowable, and suffered to take place without observation or opposition.

"Moved by these considerations, and in quality of guarantee of the constitution of the German empire, and that of mediator the emperor considers it as his duty solemnly to protest against an action which is such an attack on the tranquility and security of Germany. Justly alarmed at the mournful prospect it presents, his majesty made no delay to represent his manner of thinking on the subject to the first consul through the Russian charge d'affaires at Paris.

"While his majesty adopts a measure prescribed to him by his solicitude for the welfare of the German empire, he is convinced that the diet and the head of the Empire will do justice to his disinterested and manifestly indispensable care; and that they will unite their endeavours with his to transmit their just remonstrances to the French government, to prevail on it to take such steps and measures as the violation of their dignity may require, and the maintenance of their future security may render necessary."

And though in the eye of the law, there is no distinction between duels fought for one purpose or another, and although all are strongly condemned by the precepts of religion, yet in the view of men of sentiment and honor, how different is the case, where a duel arises from a direct personal insult, which inflames the passions of the injured, and in

This is a vertical, high-contrast black and white image. It depicts a textured surface, likely wood or stone, characterized by dark, vertical lines and lighter, irregular patches. The texture is rough and uneven, suggesting an aged and weathered material. The overall appearance is that of a close-up, vertical scan of a natural or man-made surface.

This Lottery has been authorized by the Legislature of Virginia, for the laudable purpose of erecting a seminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this State. With this view it is contemplated to raise 20,000 dollars, and 2,500 dollars in addition, for defraying the expenses attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the first respectability have been selected as trustees, and they have pledged themselves to use their utmost exertions to carry it into effect. The scheme has the advantage of giving to each each adventurer a chance for some very large prizes, whilst the proportion of prizes to blanks, is so great as to invite the friends of the intended institution to partake in the lottery, with very little risk of their becoming losers. The treasurer of this State is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are sold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above considerations will induce a rapid sale of the tickets, and the drawing will commence as soon as a sufficient number shall be sold to authorize it—which it is believed will be on the second Monday in December next.

Richmond, Jan. 31, 1804.

Tickets to be had of Robert Pollard, Dr. J. Breckenborough, sen. Wm. Price, (Reg.) Samuel Pleafants, jun. and Wm. Pritchard.

ROBERT & JOHN GRAY
HAVE JUST RECEIVED
A large supply of Dr. Stoughton's GENUINE BITTERS,
THE happy effects, and superior efficacy of these bitters, can be testified by hundreds in Alexandria and its neighbourhood, during the prevailing sickness last summer. We believe that every person, who then persevered in regularly taking them, resisted the attacks of the fever. They brace the constitution, create appetite, assist digestion, and relieve the cholera; in short, in all complaints of the stomach and bowels they have been proved to be eminently efficacious. Hence, they resist malignant fevers, and are a preventive to the ague. A course of these bitters, begun now, may prove highly beneficial, as they will gradually prepare the system to undergo the danger of a sickly summer.
There are many counterfeiters. Purchasers will please to observe that the genuine Stoughton's Bitters are sealed with the first letter of the Doctor's surname, and full directions printed on each bottle. Tavern keepers and liquor stores, will find it to their advantage to use them, as from superior strength alone they may be considered to cost no more than the trash so often imposed upon them. They are also sold by Rapine, Conrad and Co. Capitol Hill, City of Washington; Mr. March, George Town, and Mr. A. Buck, Frederickburg. Also just received,
ESSENCE OF SPRUCE.
Beer made with this article, is well known to be the most wholesome and least expensive mixed beverage for the summer season.
April 25.

Twenty Five Dollars Reward.
RAN AWAY from the subscriber's farm, in the county of Alexandria, district of Columbia, a Mulatto man called NATT COOK, about 6 feet high, between 35 and 40 years of age, long hair which he wears tied, a lock of white hair on the front of his head, a little to the left, a cooper by trade; he has several scars on his arms and wrists, a scar on his back occasioned by a scald, and several marks from a whip; he is very fond of drink and gambling; he took with him a variety of clothes and some cooper's tools. He crossed the Potomac at Georgetown a few days since, and will probably make for Baltimore, as he has been very anxious for some time past to go to sea. I will give the above reward for securing said fellow in any jail, so that I get him again, or thirty dollars, with reasonable charges if brought home. All masters of vessels and others are forewarned harbouring, employing or carrying off said fellow at their peril.
